A	01/05/2012	GOODS	Dietetic substances are foods and beverages prepared for special or restrictive diets. Under the Tenth Edition of the Nice Agreement, dietetic substances are classified as ordinary foods and beverages in Classes 29-33, depending on the nature of the goods, when those goods are not for medical purposes. Accordingly, gluten-free pasta (not for treatment of a medical condition) is in Class 30 in the same class as the ordinary pasta.		"10-2012"

Under the Tenth Edition of the Nice Classification system, applicants must indicate the generic name of food additives and their purpose, and classify them according to their purpose (when the food additives are for culinary purposes, then their nature also factors into the classification). Whether the goods are for commercial use does not control classification. The key classification issue is whether they are for food manufacturing (and therefore in Class 1) or for cooking and baking (and therefore classified in Classes 29-33 according to their nature). Please consult the Manual for guidance on classifying flavorings which are not used for food or beverages. For example, “flavorings, other than essential oils, for tobacco” is classified in Class 34. 01-01-2016: On 01-01-2016, this 01-01-2015 entry was amended to add “other than essential oils” in compliance with the Nice Classification, Tenth edition, version 2016, effective 01-01-2016. On 06-11-2015, the 03-15-2012 entry "Providing an on-line searchable database featuring information on political campaigns" was modified to "Providing an on-line searchable database featuring political information on election campaigns" to make clear the subject matter of the information and the justification for classifying the services in Class 35. A	04/02/1991	SERVICES	The word “agency/agencies” is required in the import/export IDs, because import and export agencies are businesses that assist in arranging for the shipping of goods for others, but do not actually provide transportation services themselves. IDs such as “import and export services” or “importing and exporting goods of others” would be indefinite, because the IDs are broad enough to encompass the transportation of goods in Class 39. A	01/01/2012	SERVICES	1-1-2012 This entry was added pursuant to the 10th Edition of the Nice Agreement. When listed by itself, an identification for “marketing” should include the term “services.” This entry refers to the promoting of the goods and services of others. Prior to January 1, 2012, the USPTO considered “marketing” indefinite because it could encompass promotional services and could also reasonably refer to a retail-type activity. While a retail-type service would also be classified in Class 35, the nature and purpose of a retail-type marketing service is so different from a promotion or advertising-type marketing service that “marketing” was not previously definite. Effective January 1, 2012, “marketing services” is acceptable. “		″10-2012″

A	01/01/2012	SERVICES	1-1-2012 This entry was added pursuant to the 10th Edition of the Nice Agreement. When listed by itself, an identification for "marketing" should include the term "services." While a retail-type service would also be classified in Class 35, the nature and purpose of a retail-type marketing service is so different from a promotion or advertising-type marketing service that "marketing" was not previously definite. A	10/04/2007	SERVICES	08-15-11 This identification should be used as an entire phrase. While the term “Advertising services” would be acceptable by itself, “promotional services” is too broad because it could include a variety of promotional activities. X	09/05/2013	SERVICES	On 07-01-2011 this 04-02-2009 entry was modified from “Charitable fundraising services, namely, organizing and conducting to promote awareness of tree and environmental conservation,” to “Charitable fundraising services, by means of, organizing and conducting projects to promote awareness of tree and environmental conservation,” in order to be consistent with other charitable fundraising entries. This change emphasizes that the underlying service is that of “charitable fundraising” which is a Class 36 service. The means by which the fundraising is accomplished does not impact the classification. 03-22-2012: While this wording is still acceptable, the 08-19-2010 entry is being deleted from the Manual because the classification principle, i.e., The means by which the charitable fundraising is accomplished does not impact the classification, is adequately covered by other, more clearly worded entries in the Manual. 09-05-2013: Acceptable entry status changed from “D” deleted to “X” example. A	10/22/2009	SERVICES	01-01-2021 - U.S. applicants intending to seek Extension of Protection under the Madrid Protocol should note that the International Bureau (IB) is likely to issue a notice of irregularity requiring clarification of the nature of their services if introductory language such as "providing a website …" or "providing an on-line portal…," or similar wording, is used in the identification of services. To avoid issuance of a notice of irregularity, said applicants may wish to set forth the services in their identification by listing the principal activity first and then indicating that such services are "provided by means of a website" or "provided via a website." For purposes of illustration, instead of identifying the services as "providing a website featuring business information" in Class 35, an applicant may wish to identify such services as "providing business information via a website" in Class 35. M	06/20/2013	SERVICES	On 06-20-2013, this 07-01-2004 entry was modified by deleting "building," because that wording is broad enough to include carpentry, and "providing carpentry workshop facilities" is classified in Class 37. Although services involving provision of general purpose facilities, such as convention centers and exhibition halls, are classified in Class 43, services involving provision of specialized facilities or facilities for a particular purpose are classified according to the intended purpose. A	This service involves the activity of distributing a film to movie theatres and television stations for display to the public with the film itself being returned to the producer of the entertainment product after such display. This is not the case when distribution relates to videotapes, audio tapes or other hard goods that result from the production of visual or audio entertainment. When these goods are distributed, it is the same as the distribution of any other kind of hard goods by any other manufacturer. For this reason, distribution of videotapes, audio tapes, video disks, etc. should not be accepted as a service even when the distribution is linked to the production of these goods. A	This service involves the actual creation of the motion picture or television program and the accompanying activity of distributing it to movie theatres and television stations for display to the public. This is not the case when distribution relates to video tapes, audio tapes or other hard goods that result from the production of visual or audio entertainment. When these goods are distributed, it is the same as the distribution of any other kind of hard goods by any other manufacturer. For this reason, distribution of videotapes, audio tapes, video disks, etc. should not be accepted as a service even when the distribution is linked to the production of these goods. The production of the entertainment product is perfectly acceptable in Class 41; however, the distribution of the hard goods that result from that production is not a service in Class 41.		″07-1997″

A	Insect farming services comprise the practice of raising insects for others. The insects raised may be used by the consumer to fight invasive species, to create industrial products, or to grow sustainable foods for humans or animals. To be a service, an activity must be primarily for the benefit of someone other than the applicant. TMEP 1301.01(a)(ii). Therefore, operating a wheat farm, for example, for the purpose of growing, harvesting, and selling wheat for further manufacture, is not considered a wheat farming service under the Trademark Act because, although the manufacturers derive an incidental benefit, the farming activities primarily benefit the farmer. Farming activities must be rendered for others to be a registrable service.	T	"10-2016"
